Glossary of Terms

Devices

What does a Device mean? In this instance the term "Device" is identifying your database basically just giving your database a unique name.

Some centres may have multiple computers accessing the same database. For example, you might have one computer in the main office and one at a home office or even one on a laptop. All these computers are accessing the same database. In this case since it is still the same database you will only be register it as one Device (Database) name.

B2B Device

The term B2B Device refers to a Business to Business Device that is linking the Centre with the Software Provider, in this case, Kindy Manager.
